The curving lines of the thick marble vanity top suggest a bygone era in this contemporary ensuite.

DESIGNER BRETT MICKAN "The large-format sandstone-look tiles, aged bronze fixtures, metal sink and the classic look of the marble vanity top were all part of my wink to the industrial past of the site of this newly built inner-city home. A mirrored cabinet, wall-mounted mixer and curves on the custom vanity, which is the star of this narrow room, all helped with the illusion of space while maximising storage and glamour, and meant I was able to incorporate storage without overwhelming the space. The 70mm Calacatta benchtop demonstrates the skill of my stone contractor and contrasts well with the perfection of the metal sink. The off-centre placement of the beautiful brass pendant allows a low-lit room for guests or as a night light." bmid.com.au
